OUR CIRCULATION.

The mean to keep the following paragraph stan ding for the benefit of all whom it may concern: ADVERTISING. -We would commend the following facts to the attention of the advertising community. The "Wilmington Journal" circulates upwards of 12 rior to any sold. It cures diseases without voniting, BENDRED COPIES weekly. Its circulation in the town purging, s ckening, or debilitating the patient. of Wilmington is as large as that of any other paper pubtished in the place. We would further state that its it invigorates the body. circulation in the counties which trade to this place is THREE TIMES as large as that of any other paper published in North Carolina, and that its list is daily increasing. We say, therefore, without the fear of contradiction. that it is the best vehicle for advertising which the people of Wilmington can select. One other observation We think, that although a large majority of the readers of the "Journal" are Democrats, still THEY occasionally da a little trading, as well as the readers of the whig paners. We have written the above merely for the information of those who are most deeply interested-business men of all professions and all political creeds-WHO WANT CUSTOMERS.

MISCELLANDOUS. A SKETCH OF REAL LIFE.

TRUE ECONOMY. At a musical soiree last winter at the splendid mansion of a thriving merchant, and withrequested to ask for advertised Letters, and to al a man of taste and liberality, we were struck with the magnificence which met our eyes in every direction. The highly polished mahogany doors-the ponderous and beatiful Egyptian marble mantle-piece-the rich Wilton and royal carpets-highly polished chairs and divans-elaborately carved and gilt cornices -pier glasses-suspending girandoles-satin curtains-all after the fashion of Henry IV. The drawing-rooms were filled with elegantly dressed ladies and gentlemen, and the supper and refreshments presented a scene of richness and luxury only to be looked for from persons of overgrown fortune. "How long can this last?" we said to ourselves, together with reflections which pressed upon us as to the rapid manner we gain and get rid of fortunes in this city. How like a rocket we ascend and descend! One day last week we took a ride in a light lockaway over one of the delightful roads on Long Island, to catch a little air and an appetite for dinner, and stopped to look at an Italian cottage with green Venitian piazettas and portiços, in neat taste, surrounded by a white pailing, and alled with shrubbery-a cheap, light homestead, with some fields of corn and potatoes, and a patch of wheat in the distance While gazing on the simplicity, cheerfulness, and comfort of the premises, we were roused by hearing some one call out-" Hallo, stranger!" and on looking discovered it to be our worthy host of --- Place. tion which knit the disjointed members firmly together. A second war, undertaken against the will of one third of its component States, appeared to threaten it afresh with dissolution; it ended in strengthening the Union, through a new infusion of national spirit, and by rousing a common sentiment, which absorbed sectional jealousies and passions. Next came the consummation of the victory obtained by the Democratic party in their long struggle with the federalists-a victory which seemed to threaten with speedy destruction the bond which it had been the principle of the latter to vindicate and maintain. But Providence overruled this danger also to a contrary issue, for the State authorities which could not long have endured the stricter yoke intended by the federalists, submitted easily to the modified control which the disciples of Jefferson vested in the central government. The nation overflowed across the bounding Alleganies, and spread over the wide valley of the Mississippi, and it was pronounced by friends, as well enemies, that the extension of empire would inevitably lead to disruption. Contrary to all anticipation, this very extension has preserved the unity of the republic. The growing separation of North and South, divided in interest, and hostile in feeling, prevented from coming into direct collision by the introduction of the new western States. This third and powerful Previously to the 1st of April, 1847, there had been erected in the town seventy-nine buildings, nearly all of which were erected within the two years immediately preceding that date. From the 1st of April to the 1st of August there were raised seventy-eight buildings. It appears, then, by a comparison of the two above statements, that there had been erected within five months as many buildings as were erected in all the years previous.
